

Achieve Sustainable Business Transformation

Our client develops platforms for success
Real Estate | Pacific Northwest

Executive Summary

While working with CorSource to improve our client's professional development to achieve consistent delivery processes, the need to strengthen both their leadership and technology teams was identified.

As a result, CorSource developed and executed a complete plan including business transformation tools, processes, and training programs. Our client benefited from increased team engagement and productivity while also reducing hiring and retention costs.

About Our Client

- Our client is in the real estate investment space with just under 1,000 employees supporting several billions dollars in business.
- They are located in the Pacific Northwest.
- Their mission is to focus on industry-leading projects based on parameters including location, accessibility, function, design, sustainability, and economic performance.

Challenges and Objectives:

Our client worked with CorSource to advance their ability to methodically develop and execute their roadmap. During the initial engagement, CorSource identified the need to make organizational enhancements including strengthening the leadership team and further developing the technology team. The need centered on accelerating our client's ability to transform the business through improved processes, procedures, and team dynamics. It also highlighted the need to empower the team with sustainable tactics to better manage through complex changes and improve organizational effectiveness.

How CorSource's Technology Consulting Services Helped:

CorSource's Strategic Consultants identified, developed, and implemented tools, processes, and training aimed at accelerating our client's business transformation. A key to achieving sustainable results has been CorSource's ability to provide effective coaching and training which ensures the team successfully transforms and can drive effective change.

The Outcome

Our client increased their team engagement and productivity while at the same time reducing hiring and retention costs.

CorSource planned and executed the following:

- Authored the technology team vision and mission statements
- Developed a management and leadership training plan along with supporting toolkits
- Focused employees on the business goals and means to get there
- Established consistent goal setting and a review process to ensure measurable progress
